National HouseCheck bringing home inspection services to Houston

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 21, 2019 – Boise-based National HouseCheck is on the move again, expanding its home inspection services to Houston, Texas. Following their recent launch in Austin, this will be the organization's second territory beyond Boise in which HouseCheck home inspections will be available to real estate consumers.

"We are excited for the opportunity to bring HouseCheck into Houston," says National HouseCheck Chairman and CEO, Dennis Conforto. "HouseCheck is making meaningful impacts on the industry as we introduce changes and concepts that are long overdue. We are proud to bring our expertise and unmatched transparency to Houstonian home buyers, sellers and real estate agents and help to facilitate smooth home transactions."

While Houston is the latest city in which HouseCheck's home inspection services will be available for consumers, as the organization continues its pursuit of nationwide coverage, other areas won't have to wait long.

"Everything is bigger in Texas, and HouseCheck is no exception," says HouseCheck President and COO, Bill Klehm. "The real estate industry across the state is thriving and the needs for better processes are many. HouseCheck's commitment to service and delivering a better real estate experience throughout the Lone Star State is only just getting started."

National HouseCheck offers real estate consumers the highest level of transparency when it comes to the true condition of a home. By combining thorough home inspections and an expanding suite of innovative reporting products with unmatched customer protections, HouseCheck is quickly establishing a reputation as a trusted consumer brand and industry leader.
